COMMUNICATIONS & APPEARANCES

Walter Sampson mentioned we do have representatives from the Arctic Policy Commission.

Reggie Joule- Thank you Mr. Presidents, members of the assembly when I sent out the packets to you included in that was the executive draft summary of the Arctic Policy Commission that was presented I believe in January of last year to the legislature and the Arctic Policy Commission is continuing to work since the adjournment during the session and since adjournment of having meetings. We were very fortunate that yesterday and the day before they were in Nome. Members came in yesterday and are having a meeting this afternoon down at the hotel I believe. But I also invited them when the President Sampson and I were down in Anchorage to come up since they were already going to be here. And that is why we had adjusted the dates of the meeting. Very Pleased to introduce the Senator Lisa McGuire, and Representative Bob Heron who are the co-chairs of the Alaska Arctic Policy Commission. And it is good to know that the Arctic Policy Commission is in the Arctic to hear from people. Because Arctic Issues have emerging for some time and not only has the state for the last several of years been preparing for this, but the Federal Government has as well. So I'm very pleased that the co-chairs agreed to come by and have a dialoged with our assembly, but also give an update on as to where they are with certain things and make themselves available for questions and answers. So with that Mr. President and Members of the Assembly I would like to ask both Lisa and Bob both come up and that is Jessie Logan who is the aide to Senator McGuire.

Walter Sampson- Thank you very much Mayor. I think it criticality important to follow us in the Arctic. That we understand what the roll and responsibilities of the Arctic Commission is. What they are charged with, how does that commission works with the Arctic Organizations. What do we do as a body, what's our roll within that commission. These are some of the things that we need to understand so we can have an impute into the process of a plan that certainly will be in one way or another will have an impact on the way of life of our people within the Arctic. So with that Lisa you and Bob can introduce your self's and give us a good prospective in regards to the rolls and responsibilities.

Senator Lisa- Thank you so much so much and good morning Walter, It is so good to see you and Mayor Reggie. Thank you for having us. It has been great to be in Kotzebue, the weather has been gorgeous, and the hospitality has always been supreme. I'm Lisa McGuire it is a tough name it is from the sound of music. If anybody saw that my parents were in love with that. I represent Anchorage district and I'm in the senate, I'm in the Rolls Chair women in the senate. And I have had an interest in the Arctic Issues now for about 14 years and have worked alongside Bob not in just this compasity but we both chair an Arctic Coccus that I have started in a group called PNER (Pacific Northwest Economic Region) so we are used to being partners and it is really fitting if you think about the state that you would have someone from the Senate, Someone from the house, a male, a female, someone from urban region and someone from the rule region and it is a really nice complement and balance. As we move forward over the last two years and done our work because what happens of course in the arctic has the potential to benefit the whole state. But often I think urban people don't necessarily understand their dependence on rule people, and that has been part of what I've been trying to bring to the commission is that inter play that happens in our economy. As statistics that many of you probably know our Anchorage Port 80% of the goods that go through the port of Anchorage come into Rule Alaska. So if you just look at the percentage of jobs in my community that are depended directly on the Rule People of the State and their way of life it is significant. And so as we look at growing in the arctic it is appropriate that we travel in right in the arctic and it is appropriate that we go to the urban centers to talk to people about the exciting opportunity to really benefit and partner with you here in rule Alaska. Reggie knows he is one of the first people to ever bring me here to Kotzebue drove me around in his pickup truck before the sea wall was finished and taught me how to blanket toss and native dance nobody can ever do it as well as he does but he know that im one of those law makers that with everything I take on I try to look out for that broader prospective in witch is how we can continue to heal and be one people. And work better together instead of seeing divisions and fighting over allocation of resources that we can solve these thing and move forward together so that is a broad statement. The Arctic Policy Commission is a crecher of statue and Bob can talk a little bit about how it came out of The Northern Waters Task Force, but from my prospective there was a senate that has been appointed that was really not very active, and so Bob came up to me and we stated to talking and said why don't we get this thing moving, and so there is five senators, five house members, from all across the state. And there is 16 subject matter experts. People that represent different NGOs different Corporations different interest groups and I always like to point to Layla Hough's who is from conservations society and Lisa Pegach who is from Cronico Phillips just to give you example of what we have so it is really a cross section of all the interest that is there from Alaskans point of view so we have some pretty heavy discussions at times. That balance between resource development and the need to preserve the environment to protect the land that your people that have lived in for thousands of years. Our first report was delivered the legislature in January. You can find it at akarctic.com because what we are presenting here today should the technology work isn't that report so if you want to read that I know you mayor have a copy of that one. Walter I know you have a copy. There is a hundred and thirty-three page report on that is quite extensive. But I think that you as an assembly members as leaders here in the arctic would appreciate reading at some point. But then there is an Executive Summery. And the Executive Summery is meant to it contains our four vision statements and it contains sort of a broader view of what our policy mission is whit the Alaska Arctic Policy Commission. I just want to wrap up what I'm say the most important work that Bob and I have been able to do. Number one is getting the resources to bring the commission all around the state to listen. We have listening sessions from elders and community members that have been really helpful to help us understand better what it means to live and work in the arctic and sort of the being in the society that excitement people have about the changing arctic. And I would put it exactly that way. That it is a mix between those two. And the second with respect to our leadership at the federal level by Bob and I are pretty forceful people for our state and we got into the White House meeting at the old executive office building very early on and found out that the United States was already on a path to write a strategic plan for the Arctic. There was a policy that has been written back in 1992 in the Bush Administration. But the whole strategy has been written so Bob and I were able to ask them to slow down to include Alaska to include the policy commission and our voices. And because of the four site in creating the Alaska Arctic Policy Commission we had that lagitament plat form. And they listened and that was great and so Bob and I had in-person meetings and weekly meeting with the National Strategy, on the Arctic Group which is the Secretary of the State as the Representative along with the President now for about a year. So I wouldn't say that the Policy that has come out of the White House is even close to perfect. But I would say it is better as the result of the work we have done, and this is something I know all of you are interested in precipitating as Admiral Pat comes around and Secretary Bolten you will have that chance to. But I think that is one of the big accomplishments that we had in the Policy Commission. Is getting the Federal government to understand that the United States wouldn't be an Arctic Nation without Alaska and their for our voices should be included in every single level and that irrespective of the international nature of the Arctic Council is us as the people that stand to lose and gain the most by development in the change of the Arctic.

Bob- Good Morning Mr. President, Assembly members, staff, and of course especially to our good friend Mayor Joule. As you all know one of the reasons we are here today is because of a visit by the chair of the Northern Waters Task Force witch I was a member of and to this very room. And the comments made by residence of this region had a huge effect on where we are at today. The Northern Waters Task Force asked that the legislator continue the work on the listening to the people around the state but specifically the people around the US definition of the Arctic. By interdiction my name is Bob Herron I'm going into my fourth term, I'm blessed this year I'm running unopposed. I look forward to that opportunity to represent the people of the Yukon, Kuskokwim Delta. But currently and because of redistricting I represent a very unusually district. Per the wisdom of the Redistricting Board they put Bethel and Pilot Point, Dutch Harbor, Unalaska and Attu in one district seventeen hundred miles long. And it has been a very good experience for me because I have learned a lot about the Southern Bering Sea. And it is very important to the arctic. But I have learned about another part of Alaska. Also by interdiction is my wife Margaret Hoffman. Is Terry Hoffman's sister. And of course that is how we are related through marriage to the Sampson's. So it is very much the closest community in the Arctic. And so Lisa has explained a lot about what we are doing. We would like to share with you a visual about what the Arctic Policy Commission does. And of course you can see on the first slide this is not unfamiliar to you. This is where we are looking for the future and if you could have been in Nome to hear Lineman Hoffman Speak rather forcefully. It is about the Arctic and that is why we are here it isn't about nessimarily directly about the other parts of the state, but it is the Arctic.

Vice President Weisner- Senator McGuire, Representative Herron, I just want to thank you for your support when we were down in Jeau nu making time to meet with us and hear the items that were important for us. And helping us see those through. Thank you and welcome.

Bob Herron- Boy on behalf of Lisa and I appreciate those comments. Is that again you know our mentor Reggie has always strive to remind people Donny, Lineman, Neil, Bennie these and many other people in the region that have a passion for the arctic. And it is really important to us.

President Sampson- Thank you very much for this interdiction Bob. Lisa thank you very much for coming to the Northwest Certainly to say a very critical important issue that is before us. For to long for many years' people in bush Alaska has been planned for somewhere else. It is time now a critical time any plans that are being done elsewhere we don't want to react to it. If those plans have an effect on the way of life. We are going to set on the table with people that are going to plan the Arctic. Because of the implications on the way of life for those who made their lively hoods in the waters. We appreciate your time and that concern you have. Even though your representation is within other areas. Your concern in regards to Arctic Alaska is critical. And we appreciate your presents here this morning. The issue in regards to the Economy in Anchorage. Bush Alaska dumps a lot of money into Anchorage. Weather it is conferences there, people going there for medical, or other reasons. We dump a lot of money into the economy of Anchorage. As you see as you report what is happening in the Arctic, and your envision on regards how we are going to precipate in these things are critical. The benefits that we need to look at is for the coastline communities. Is critically important. And I thank you for the message that you gave to the White House that if there will be plans that will be put together. We are going to participate in these things. Bob thank you very much for being here as well. And we appreciate your time and effort for brining that message. As we listen to the presentation on regards to the issues that they will bring to the table. If any one of you will have any issues any questions we will have time to dialog back and forth. Hoping that some of the issues that we are not sure how things are going to happen. And we will get those raised. The other issue that we also need to think about a governance to this region. Let's take that responsibility and insert our roll our charge to the process that these folks from the Commission is dealing with. We have a responsibility to the residence of this region. If it is such that we can insert that right in to the commission's responsibility we need to take advantage of those things. So with that you can continue on. Your presentation thank you.

Bob Herron- So the Alaska Arctic Policy commission like Lisa said this is our website. AKArctic.com. I just wanted to dwell on this logo just briefly. As this is a polar star view circumpolar north and everybody is very familiar with it, as you can see Alaska and Northwest Alaska and the North slope as you know your on the front lines and we demonstrate this to everybody we make this presentation to, whether its in DC, out of Seattle any where we make this presentation we remind them that the residence especially this part of Alaska is there the ones whos going to feel the effects first what ever happens in the future and we also remind especially people from the lower 48 the only reason the United States is that the Arctic Nation is because of Alaska and strategically we are on the forth front and the center of action and like the president said you must speak out

He expressed the importance of residents needs to voice their concerns; no one from the outside should determine our way of life, the opportunity of our children, grandchildren should be there. What do the interest groups bring to us? Do they support what occurs in our Region? We are tax based operated; govern body. Sure subsistence is critical to our people; number one making sure it is protected. President Sampson raised his concern regarding young people; along with that there goes our culture. This Borough will determine on permitting process.

She hopes not during the busy hunting season. Marlene also discussed caribou migration, didn't they used to say leave the big ones alone. Some people were there filming; one time she found a lot of dead caribou, they shouldn't do that we have that for our food.
